

INDICTMENT IS QUASHED TODAY

Judge Duncan Of Findlay, Ohio, Takes Hand In The Rockefeller Summons.

IS IT A FOREIGN CORPORATION?

So Decides Relatives To The Standard Oil-Refuses To Strike Out Other Parts Of The Allegations, However.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Findlay, O., Nov. 4.—Judge Duncan of the common pleas court today quashed the summons served upon John D. Rockefeller in Cleveland last summer.
This opinion is that Rockefeller represents a foreign corporation that is not doing business in the state of Ohio and that Rockefeller's visit to the state was purely a personal one, not for the transaction of any business.
The motion made by the Standard and other oil companies to strike out a certain allegation in the petition to have receivers appointed for the Standard Oil of Ohio, the Standard of Indiana, and have their business wound up, was overruled by the court.

CUMMINS ANNOUNCES HE FAVORS FEDERAL CONTROL

Iowa's Chief Executive Has Special Meeting With President Roosevelt This Morning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—After an extended conference with President Roosevelt today, Gov. Cummins of Iowa, announced himself in favor of the federal control of corporations and added it was his belief that an amendment to the federal constitution would be necessary before such a control could be exercised. Matters upon which he was called to discuss with the President, he declined to state. The Governor returned to Iowa today.

NEWS FORECAST OF THE COMING WEEK

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—The elections of this week, while of little importance outside of the states in which they are held, may indicate in some measure which way the wind blows in regard to the presidential contest of next year and for this reason the results will be closely analyzed by the managers of both parties. Especial interest centers in the contests in Maryland and Kentucky, in both of which states the results are expected to be close.
Today is the day fixed for passing sentences on the Aichison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company, recently convicted in Los Angeles on a charge of robbing.

The stockholders of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, at their annual meeting in Chicago Wednesday, will take action looking to a further consolidation of the company's properties in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Wyoming.
The Alabama legislature will convene in extra session Wednesday to consider measures for the regulation of railroads and railroad rates in that state.

Three large conventions of especial interest to women are to be held during the week. They are the national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union at Nashville, the meeting of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae at Boston, and the annual executive meeting of the National Council of Jewish Women at the Jamestown exposition.

NO NEED FOR EXTRA CONGRESS SESSION

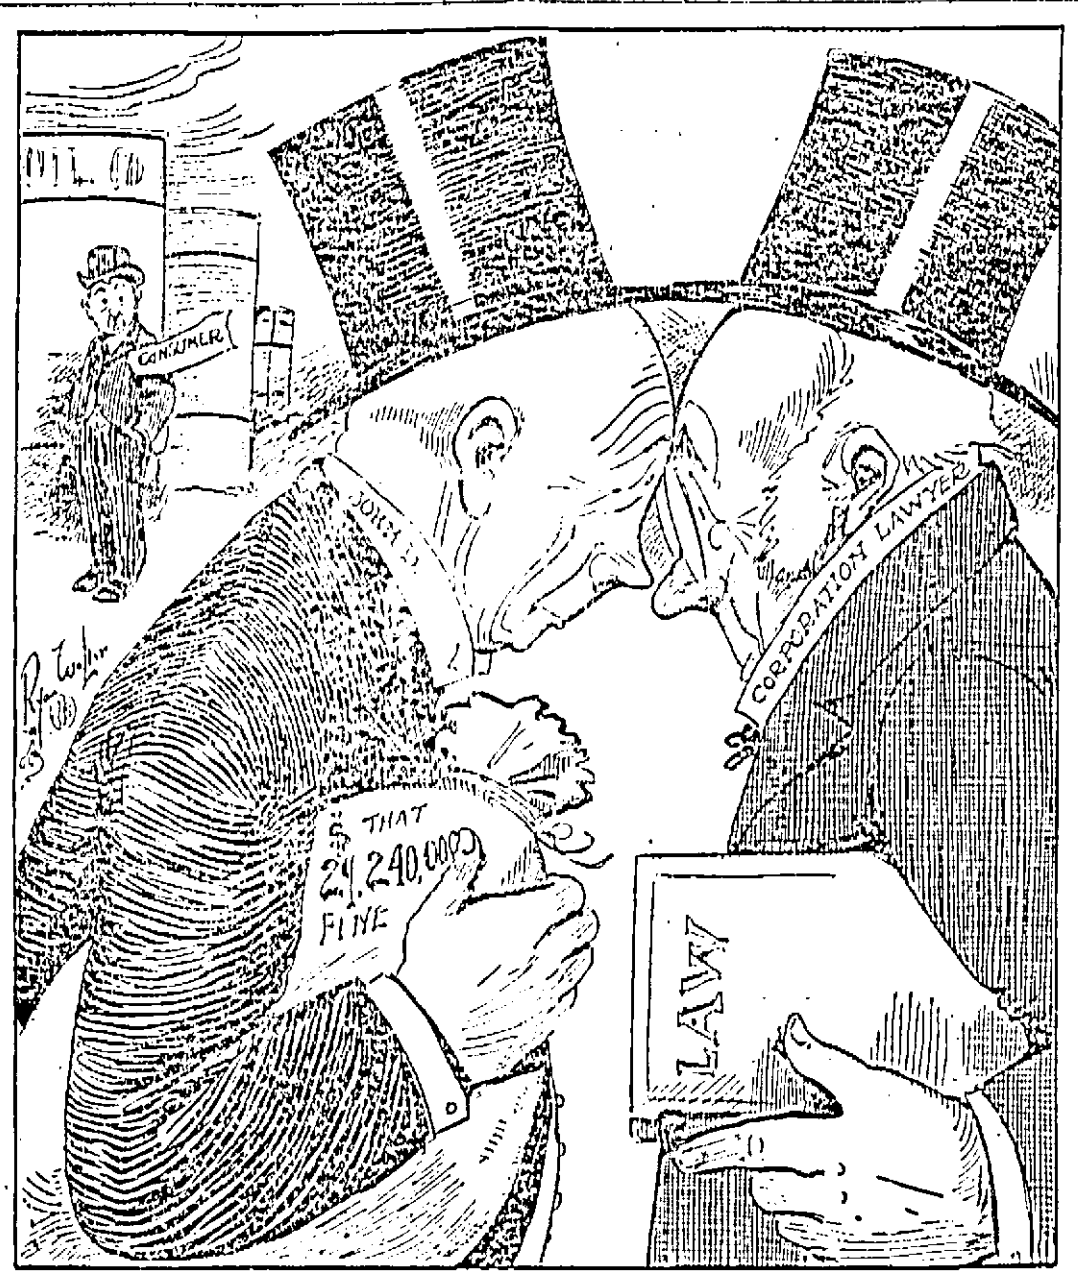

Congressman Davidson Says There is no Necessity For Calling Law Makers on to Washington.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Oshkosh, Wis., Nov. 4.—Congressman Jas. H. Davidson of this city today made the statement that he did not believe that an extra session of Congress as urged by financial leaders in the East would be necessary. He said that he believed the call upon President Roosevelt for an extra session was simply a scheme to raise asset currency. He said he did not believe there was anything to warrant the call of an extra session, and that it would be unwise and unnecessary.

MASONIC INITIATION DATE IS CELEBRATED

Anniversary of Washington's Initiation Into Masonic Order At Fredericksburg, Va.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 4.—Masonic Lodge No. 1, of this city, appropriately observed today the 150th anniversary of Gen. George Washington's initiation into the order. The initiation took place November 1, 1752. No manual display was made at his initiation, and the only relic of the occasion handed down to the lodge are the records, the Bible on which he took the oath, the certificate or checks for entrance, and the punch bowl figured so conspicuously in the report following the degree work. The relics are highly valued by the lodge and only once have they been permitted to leave its possession. This was five years ago when they were taken to Philadelphia for a celebration of Washington's initiation into Masonry.

SECRET SERVICE MAN SHOT

KILLED IN SELF-DEFENSE BY A MINER IN COLORADO.

Detectives on Fraudulent Land Entry Work Seemingly Were Trespassing on the Hesperus Mine.

Denver, Col., Nov. 4.—Joseph Walker, a United States secret service man, was shot and instantly killed Sunday by an employee of the Hesperus mine, located several miles west of Durango, Col.

The shooting occurred at the mouth of the air shaft of the mine and is said to have been done in self-defense. The Hesperus mine is owned by the Porter Fuel company, and C. C. Dorsey, attorney for the company, was notified of the killing. His report of the affair, which he says is trustworthy, clearly justifies the shooting. It seems that government agents have been in the Durango country for several days, gathering evidence to be used in prosecuting persons indicted for fraudulent entries on coal lands. It being Sunday, no work was in progress in the Hesperus mine, and several of the miners were strolling over the company property, and on approaching the air shaft isolated from the rest of the workings, a man who was standing at the mouth of the shaft ordered them to halt. The miners thought he was joking and did not obey, whereupon, according to Dorsey's story, the man fired, the bullet passing close to the head of one of the miners. The latter whipped out a revolver and returned the fire, killing the man instantly.

Investigation developed that he was Joseph Walker. Further investigation showed that a rope ladder had been let down into the mine, and this was hauled to the surface. Some time afterward, three men, all government agents, appeared at the mine entrance, being unable to make exit any other way.

Dorsey says there was no reason for the secret service men entering the Hesperus mine, as the title to the property is not questioned, and their act was simply trespassing.

$200 Reward: At the County Jail today a circular describing the theft of $365.33 cash and $972.07 in stamps from the Vulcan, Michigan, postoffice on Oct. 28 was received today and two hundred dollars reward awaits the man who arrests the criminals. The stamps were in 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 15 and 25 cent denominations.

FIRE DOES $2,500 DAMAGE TO PLATTEVILLE HOME
Residence Damaged by Fire Sunday Morning—Furniture Was Saved.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Platteville, Wis., Nov. 4.—Fire destroyed the interior of William Pickett's residence in the southwest part of the city yesterday morning. All the furniture of the house was saved but the flames did about $2,500 damage to the structure.

Evansville, Wis., Nov. 4.—Fire this morning destroyed the rear end of the store building occupied by G. W. Ewing, the baker, and owned by Mrs. Helen Winston of Janesville. The blaze started from the oven in some manner between 5:30 and 6 o'clock this morning. The fire was confined to the rear end of the building but the front part was badly smoked. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars, there being no insurance on the building. The rear of the express office next door was partly damaged.

MANY FAMILIAR FACES WILL BE ABSENT FROM CONGRESS

Congressman Babcock, Of Wisconsin, Will Be Missed In House As Well As McCleary Of Minnesota.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—When the sixtieth congress assembles four weeks from today, there will be much about it strange to those who have long been familiar with the personnel of past congresses.

In the house the democrats have lost their senior member in point of service, J. H. Rankin, of Alabama, who was defeated for re-election by Richmond Pearson Hobson, the hero of the Merimee. This party is not to lose the services of Mr. Rankin, however, for he takes the seat in the United States Senate made vacant by the death of the venerable Senator Edmund W. Pettus.

Probably the most conspicuous loss on the republican side of the House is General Governor of Ohio, whose patriarchal and venerable appearance has for years focused the attention of the galleries, and whose wit and disposition to banter have many a time made the hall ring with laughter when the attention has been so tense as to seem as if nothing but bitter passion could find expression.

Another picturesque figure has disappeared with the retirement of Hon. Joseph C. Sibley of the Franklin, Pa. district, who served ten years in the House. He was elected to the Fifty-third Congress as a democrat, and again to the Fifty-sixth Congress, after narrowly escaping nomination as vice president on the Bryan ticket.

Another old-timer who will be missed is James W. Wadsworth, of the Thirty-fourth New York district, defeated by Peter A. Bortone, a democrat. Mr. Wadsworth served about eighteen years in the House and was chiefly conspicuous on account of his important work as chairman of the committee on agriculture.

Other members of the House who will be missed when the Sixtieth Congress assembles are Howell of Alabama, Smith, Trimble and Gilbert of Kentucky, Robertson of Louisiana, McNary and Sullivan of Massachusetts, Hunt of Missouri, Van Duzer of Nevada, McBurnett of New Jersey, Hearst, Town and Rappert of New York, Patterson and Gaudier of North Carolina, Garber of Ohio, Kline of Pennsylvania, Butler of Tennessee, Brooks and Field of Texas, Southall of Virginia, Doremus and Davis of West Virginia, and Bishop of Michigan. These disappeared from the House because they failed of re-election last fall.

Among the scheduled speakers are such well known educators as President Caroline Hazard of Wellesley College, President Lathrop Briggs of Hamilton College, President William E. Huntington of Boston University, Pres. Chas. R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, President M. Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr College, Melbert W. Shinn of the University of California, and Emma Perkins of Western Reserve University.

FINANCIAL SITUATION IS VERY STEADILY IMPROVING

Bank Of England's Raise Of Rates Does Not Disturb The New York Financiers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Nov. 4.—The persistent demands from America for gold in spite of the recently increased discount rate of the Bank of England and in the face of the continued rise in the cable transfer rate caused the Bank of England this morning to raise the rate from 5 1/2 to 6 per cent.

Doors Closed

Leontia, O., Nov. 4.—The First National bank failed to open its doors today and notice was posted on the doors that the state's concern will liquidate its liabilities.

Nothing New

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—Nothing of a new or disquieting nature regarding the financial situation reached the treasury department today.

Still Tense

New York, Nov. 4.—The general financial situation was still tense this morning, but the downtown banks and trust companies feel confident the situation is well under control.

The raising of the Bank of England discount rate to 6 per cent was not unexpected by those familiar with the conditions in Europe.

DUCK HUNTER SHOT BY HIS COMPANION

Will Carney of Milwaukee Shot on Green Bay While Out Hunting Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 4.—Will Carney, Assistant Superintendent of the International Harvester Co., of Milwaukee was accidentally shot and killed this morning while hunting ducks on the East side of Green Bay. Mr. Carney, A. Brighton, Cashier of the company, and the Superintendent of the Star Creamery Co. of Milwaukee were each hidden when a flock of ducks flew over. All three men fired and all of the shot from one gun entered Mr. Carney's body and killed him instantly.

..Forty Years Ago..

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, Nov. 4, 1867.—Stand By Your Guns.—One morning in the fall of 1861 Phil Sheridan woke at Winchester, Va., to hear enemy's guns thundering at his army 20 miles up the valley. He mounted his steed and rode like wind to the front to find the enemy shouting victory. Never despairing he rode along the line and dropped an encouraging word to the men and rallied them to another effort. In they went, under the impulse thus inspired, and snatched victory from the very jaws of defeat and sent the rebels in fragments. In every direction. Men of Rock county you are the Phil Sheridan of the republican party. You can send it word along the line tomorrow that will be as cheering as that given by Sheridan at Cedar Hill. It may be that your vote will save the day.

Side Issues.—Don't be bamboozled tomorrow with side issues but keep in view the great question of the day.

Times. Read this declaration from the republicans platform adopted at Madison, Sept. 4: "That it is our present work to re-establish the shaken foundations of the republic and we will not be tempted by any ingenuity of our adversaries to leave this work in order to contend about imaginary issues." Friends remember this tomorrow and waste no time in arguing the "imaginary issues" which the enemy will invent on purpose to draw you off from the vital question at stake. Never mind the side shows where the copperheads keep their "snails" and fat hounds but look out for the big chiefs where Andy Johnson is clown and ring master.

Flag.—Down south the rebels call the day under which they fought the "banner of the lost cause." Up north it is styled "the old democratic standard." Don't vote for any man tomorrow who mourns over the "lost cause" in Janesville.

CAFFEREY POSTS SANDERS

POLITICAL SITUATION IN LOUISIANA IS DRAMATIC.

Lieutenant Governor's Friends Refuse to Let Him Fight with Son of Former Senator.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 4.—The firm reply of Lieut. Gov. J. Y. Sanders Sunday to what has been universally accepted as a challenge for a duel by James C. Cafferey, son of the late United States Senator James C. Cafferey, has created a dramatic political situation in Louisiana.

Another matter, entirely foreign to the personal combat, increases the tension. The practically rival proclamations of the lieutenant governor and of Gov. Blancheard of the coming extra session of the legislature were brought face to face by the governor's arrival here Sunday from the east.

Early Sunday morning, in close conformity to the code of honor, Mr. Sanders issued a written reply to the statements of Mr. Cafferey. This statement declared that the lieutenant governor holds himself personally responsible for the utterances which caused the trouble, and added:

"I am prepared to meet that responsibility and Mr. Cafferey knows where to find me."

Proceeding this statement, two representatives of each man in the dispute had held conferences and Mr. Sanders' friends had declared firmly they would not accept a challenge in accordance with the duelling code because the lieutenant governor could not violate the statute law making duelling a crime.

Next followed the "posting" of several sections of the state by Mr. Cafferey with hand bills stating that satisfaction had been refused him by Mr. Sanders. These hand bills declared that the lieutenant governor had called some of Mr. Cafferey's statements untrue.

This declaration of both the lieutenant governor and Mr. Cafferey is relied on to prevent a personal encounter. There are four, however, that friends of the disputants may be drawn into a serious quarrel.

Gov. Blancheard, before leaving the east, announced that he would probably annul Mr. Sanders' proclamation which placed corporation control before the extra session of the legislature.

HAVE VARIETY OF NAMES.

Numerous Appellations Bestowed on Race of Gipsies.

The gipsies, interest in whom is revived by the appearance of the first issue of the revived Gipsy Lore society, has passed under a variety of names, arising either from their supposed original country or the calling and characteristic of the race. The Old English Egyptian, the Spanish Gitan and the Magyar Pharus nepuk (Pharus's people) all point to an Egyptian origin; the Scandinavian Tattar identifies them with the Mongolian hordes which terrorized early Europe, while the French Bohemian suggests yet another country as their cradle. As to the names bestowed by their supposed character, the Arab holds calls them Harand (a villain), the Dutchman Heydens or heathens, and the Persian takes his name from their complexion, and dubs them Karachi, or swarthy. A charter of William the Lion, as early as the twelfth century, mentions their Scotch name of Thinders, which is commonly supposed to be a corruption of Thinder, although possibly the substitution of "t" for "d" has produced this form of the Italian Zingaro, one of the most widespread of gipsy appellations.

Scotland has a credit currency issued by the banks that expands and contracts twice a year at the rate of $1.22 per capita or $5,000,000. The same ratio would give the United States about $1,000,000,000 of credit currency, but we have not one cent of credit currency, though we need it more than any other country in the world.

France has a credit currency issued by the Bank of France which is constantly expanding and contracting throughout the year at the rate of $1.22 per capita or $5,000,000. The same ratio would give the United States about $1,000,000,000 of credit currency, but we have not one cent of credit currency, though we need it more than any other country in the world.

CREDIT CURRENCY TO SOLVE TROUBLE

CONGRESSMAN FOWLER ARGUES FOR BANKERS' MEASURE.

ONLY PERMANENT RELIEF

Exchange of Cashier's Checks for Reserve Money Now Floating Around Country Required by Nation's Trade.

New York, Nov. 4.—That permanent relief from the present monetary stringency can be had only through a system of credit currency adequate to meet the requirements of trade and redeemable in gold coin, was the opinion expressed Sunday by Representative Charles Fowler, of New Jersey, chairman of the banking and currency committee, which at the coming session of congress will endeavor to have a law passed providing for credit currency issued by the national banks.

Until such permanent relief is made possible by legislative enactment, Mr. Fowler asserted, the situation must be met by the issuance of clearing house certificates, cashier's checks and due bills of business houses and manufacturers.

Underlying Conditions Sound. "The underlying business conditions," he said, "are essentially sound, as evidenced by the increased earnings of railroads and the fact that the value of our agricultural products this year is $200,000,000 more than last year (which was the highest year in our history), and they are bringing to our people about $7,000,000,000, but public confidence has been greatly shaken, and credit seriously affected, therefore every patriotic citizen, from the president down, should do all in his power to restore that confidence which is essential to national prosperity."

"The cause of the currency stringency is that there is scattered broadcast throughout the country, at the minute, in the wheat, corn and cotton fields, in the pockets of the people or locked up, about $1,300,000,000 of the reserve money of the United States, most of which, under a proper condition, would be in the banks, serving as reserve. Temporary relief will be through the forced use of current credit in the form of clearing house certificates, cashier's checks and due bills of business houses and manufacturers during the 90 days. The permanent cure must come through a system of credit currency expanding and contracting with the ordinary demands of the smaller trade, precisely as checks and drafts do in the broader field of commerce."

Reserves Should Be in Banks. "We have now proceeded far enough into the present financial crisis to get a pretty clear perspective of the real situation."

"First, the condition is now general, reaching every nook and corner of the country."

"Second, if the gold certificates, the United States notes and silver certificates or the reserve money which the banks of the country have sent into the wheat fields of the west and northwest, into the cornfields of the west, into the cotton fields of all sections, to settle up the year's business, I say, if those reserves now scattered broadcast over the land were in the banks where they properly belong, there would have been no money panic this fall."

What Credit Currency Would Do. "If the banking institutions of the country could exchange $1,000,000,000 of cashier's checks for $1,000,000,000 of reserve money now floating around in the mines, wheat, corn and cotton fields, and this $1,000,000,000 were added to the $1,000,000,000 in the banks on July 1, 1907, our bank liabilities would be increased about eight per cent, while our reserve would be increased 100 per cent."

Scotland has a credit currency issued by the Bank of France which is constantly expanding and contracting throughout the year at the rate of $1.22 per capita or $5,000,000. The same ratio would give the United States about $1,000,000,000 of credit currency, but we have not one cent of credit currency, though we need it more than any other country in the world.

France has a credit currency issued by the Bank of France which is constantly expanding and contracting throughout the year at the rate of $1.22 per capita or $5,000,000. The same ratio would give the United States about $1,000,000,000 of credit currency, but we have not one cent of credit currency, though we need it more than any other country in the world.

RHEUMATISM

BLOOD FILLED WITH URIC ACID

Rheumatism comes from an excess of uric acid in the blood. This acid circulating through the system acts as an irritant to the different muscles, nerves, bones and tissues of the body, and produces the inflammation and swelling of the joints and the sharp, cutting pains characteristic of the disease. When the blood is overburdened with uric acid it continually grows weaker and more acid, and poorer in nourishing qualities. Then Rheumatism becomes chronic, and not only a painful, but a formidable and dangerous disease. Sometimes the heart is attacked, the general health is affected, and the oils and fluids which lubricate the muscles and joints are destroyed by the acid matter which the blood is constantly depositing in them; the muscles shrink and lose their elasticity, the coating of the joints becomes hard and thick, and often the sufferer is left a hopeless cripple. S. S. S. attacks the disease at its head, goes down into the circulation, and by neutralizing and removing the uric acid from the circulation and building up the thin, acid blood, cures Rheumatism permanently. S. S. S. changes the sour, acid-burdened blood to a rich, healthy stream which quiets the excited nerves, eases the throbbing, painful muscles and joints, and filters out of the system the irritating matter which is causing the pain and inflammation. Begin the use of S. S. S. now and get the cause out of your blood so that the cold and dampness of Winter will not keep you in constant pain and misery. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free.

THE PARCELS POST

The question of whether or not the government shall enlarge its scope as a common carrier of merchandise, will come before congress, at the next session, and promises a lively debate.

The express companies will oppose it, as they have always done, and the businessmen in the smaller cities and towns have, heretofore, lined up against it, claiming that the mail order houses would reap a rich harvest, at their expense.

This class of opposition, however, is being withdrawn, because of the skillful and intelligent management of Postmaster General George Von L. Meyer, who is an ardent advocate of a parcels post bill, which he proposes to have introduced in congress.

Mr. Meyer has made an exhaustive study of conditions, and finds a great deal of injustice connected with the present system. He delivered an address at the banquet of the New England postmasters in Boston October 12, which contained many facts with which the people are not familiar, and also an outline of the measure which he proposes to recommend.

This address convinced the New England retail merchants to a man, and they are now supporting the measure. Mr. Meyer proposes to reduce the price of parcels postage from 16 to 12 cents a pound to all points in the United States. This has been the rate to all foreign countries for years. It now costs 61 cents to send a four-pound package to New York, while the same package goes to London, or any other foreign port, for 48 cents. His plan for the parcel post is best stated in his own language, which follows:

"I propose to recommend the establishment of a parcel post on rural routes which will meet the objections of the small store keepers, and retailers. This will be a boon to our rural population, and to the storekeeper, as the latter can receive his orders by mail or telephone and dispatch the desired merchandise by the rural carrier. The farmer will be saved from lugging up his horse and losing the time he needs for planting or harvesting his crops, and it will enable the storekeeper to increase his sales and meet the requirements of modern trade. If my recommendations are adopted, it will cost 12 cents a pound for the mail-order house to send parcels to the rural delivery patron from any city postoffice, while for delivery from the distributing office of the rural route, or if mailed by a patron of any rural route for delivery to a patron on the same route, the charge will be but 5 cents for the first pound and 2 cents for each additional pound up to 11 pounds, or 25 cents for a package weighing 11 pounds."

Elisha Winters of Boston is organizer of the National Association of Retail Merchants. After listening to Mr. Meyer's address, he sent him the following letter:

"Dear Sir:

"I had the pleasure of hearing your address last Saturday evening at American House, Boston, on the proposed parcels post measure you will recommend to congress.

"What I think of your address is partly shown from interview in Boston Herald (see clipping enclosed). From hearing your extreme opponent I am now your strongest possible supporter. While prophecy is dangerous, I predict every state association in New England of retail merchants will reconsider their votes of opposition and all vote their approval. As I understand your remarks, the railroads are to have nothing to do with transporting any merchandise, 11 lbs. for 25 cts. That will only apply to rural routes.

"Respectfully,

"(Signed) ELISHA WINTERS."

This is strong endorsement, as it comes from organized opposition. The working of this plan would mean that Janesville merchants could send out a ten-pound package in the county for 22 cents, while the city mail order house would pay $1.32 for the same service. That is protecting the home market as effectively as though it were fenced in.

The bill will be vigorously fought, but when the people wake up to its significance, it will receive the support of the masses in all parts of the country.

WHAT WILL CONGRESS DO

The all-absorbing topic for discussion, just now, is the financial problem. That something is radically wrong with our circulating medium, is generally recognized. That a nation rich in all material things, and prosperous beyond compare, should be handicapped for want of money to meet the legitimate demands of business, is a new and startling proposition, and the people are at a loss to understand it.

Yet this is the obstacle which confronts us like a stone wall. Plenty of stocks and bonds, plenty of manufactured goods and merchandise, a bumper crop at a range of prices far beyond the average, a billion dollars of idle money held as collateral by the government, but no money to keep the wheels in motion—the most peculiar conditions that ever existed in this or any other country.

When Wall street was struggling under a loss of three and a half billion dollars, the people laughed and said, "Good for Wall street," but within the past ten days the great money center has demonstrated to the satisfaction of all observing men, that it is still the balance-wheel which holds the nation steady when facing disaster.

The Morgans and Rockefeller are products of Wall street, and in spite of caution and staidness they stood by the ship at a time when an army of muckrakers and reformers looked on like plagues.

It is fortunate for the country that the storm struck Wall street first, for it possessed men and resources able to withstand it. The receding wave, which is now sweeping over the land, will leave a wake of disaster. Many industries are already feeling it, and an era of enforced idleness will be a new and hard experience, after the long period of prosperity which the nation has enjoyed.

It is idle to talk about the cause of conditions which exist today. There were several causes—reckless speculation, extravagant living, dishonesty, but greater than all, long continued criticism and agitation of corporations and corporate wealth, until confidence was destroyed and wealth became a by-word.

The chickens have come home to roost and muckrakers and reformers will be able to devote a little time to entertaining an idle crowd, for "God's patient poor" will be largely in evidence, before confidence is again restored.

The last straw that crippled the camel, and put him out of business, was the shortage of currency. All over the country the banks found themselves with all kinds of good securities, and an abundance of gold, silver, and copper, but short of money for the ordinary demands of business.

The bankers of the country have long felt that such an emergency might arise, and have frequently urged the government to provide for it through a system of elastic currency. The object lesson now furnished is better than any argument, and if congress takes heed, and comes to the rescue, present experiences will never be repeated.

This nation is noted for producing men for emergencies and it will not be surprising if some clear-headed financier like J. Pierpont Morgan comes to the rescue in the present crisis with a practical plan for permanent relief.

The credit of this government has back of it the American people. A collateral that was good enough to finance a civil war for four years, and meet every obligation, yet today, when the wealth of the nation has increased an hundredfold, the same people are compelled to suffer inconvenience and loss, while the government holds as collateral several hundred millions to protect notes of issue.

It takes the first elements of business or common sense. If a man worth a million should give his note for $100,000, due in five years, and immediately lay away $100,000 in gold to meet it, he would be a fit subject for a guardian.

Yet that is exactly what our government is doing, and has been doing on a large scale for the past ten years. The people need some of this idle money to use and so long as they furnish all the collateral the government needs to maintain credit at home and abroad, they object to putting up cash as double security. Congress is expected to furnish relief and will be held accountable if it is not forthcoming.

PRESS COMMENT.

Finnish Bargains

Shelbyman Journal: The people of Finland will pay $1,000,000 this year for exemption from serving in the Russian army. This is cheap life insurance.

Not So Bad as It Seems

Nashville American: If football were as dangerous as it looks to the mollycoddle, it would be necessary to have new contestants for each engagement.

Is Still Within Reach

Chicago Tribune: Congressman Tawney's estimate of $300,000,000 as the total cost of the Panama canal is not necessarily alarming. This is at least a $200,000,000 country.

Rough Joke on Humorist

Milwaukee Sentinel: Report says Mark Twain was "let in on the ground floor" in a stock deal and returned to the tune of $25,000. The question is, can Mark see the joke?

Against

Milwaukee Journal: If those about ship of state do not duck their heads pretty continually they will get knocked overboard by the boom. The La Follette one has been launched again.

Its Brevity and Exclusiveness

Chicago News: On the whole, we prefer a neuter punle which is soon over to one long drawn out, such as we used to have. In addition to brevity we also appreciate one that is kept exclusively in New York.

Climbing after Trouble

Exchange: A Chicago scientist says it is 111 degrees below zero in the air nine miles from the earth. We don't see how it could possibly get that cold without the assistance of a janitor.

The Sun's Mistaken Glimmer

New York Sun: What was the Taff home but a bubble blown from the whitehouse, an imperial fantasy that gave its moment of distraction, a wind that has stopped blowing to expose the bellows in worked no more?

Seas Crisis for Cooper

Behavon Enterprise: The straws now indicate that Mr. Cooper may find his political skill taxed to hold his congressional job and that the next preliminary will be as strenuous as any ever seen in the old first district.

Best Wishes to Coeds

Milwaukee Journal: It's a mean way to get back at the girls for taking all of the scholarships at Lawrence to propose to limit female attendance at that prominent Methodist institution. It is dollars to doughnuts that the "darters" will win out on the proposition.

Any Inference but Right One

Milwaukee News: Secretary Taff is in receipt of a hurry-up order from Washington. This something gone wrong with the "boom," or does Roosevelt feel that the need for "continuing prosperity" demands that he shall permit himself to be a third term candidate against his determined will?

A Thumbail Preachment

Milwaukee Sentinel: Let us stop saying: "The melancholy days are here" at any time. Each of the seasons of the year has its promise as well as its reward. That is their message to life, especially to that life which is lived in a confident and abiding faith in an all powerful providence.

Where the News Is Most Welcome

Exchange: It is announced that Christmas "packages" for our soldiers in Cuba and the Philippines will be carried free by the Postal department. The information will be received with particular pleasure by the distilling interests.

Suspicion Is Becoming a Habit

Chicago Examiner: Now it is May or Thompson of Detroit who accuses the city officials of graft. The frequency of these accusations over the wisdom of the city councilmen, who said: "My son, one should be very careful about saying anything that casts doubt on the guilt of a public official."

Nervousness Not World-Wide

Chicago Record-Herald: Bankers in Germany and Holland are advising their customers to invest in American securities, explaining that this is a favorable time to buy because there is presently going to be a boom all around, for as stocks are coming down, the lack of confidence seems to be confined to a few nervous people in this country.

Urban Nimrod More Sportsmanlike

Oskosh Chronicle: The Weyanoga Northwesters claim that the average city hunter merely wastes his ammunition and scares the ducks away without getting any game to show for it. Even at that, however, he probably has more fun for his money than the average country hunter, who refuses to shoot until the birds are so close he can shut his eyes and still be fairly sure of hitting something when he pulls the trigger.

WORLD CENSUS OF JEWS.

Only Two Countries Have Greater Number Than America.

In the American Jewish Year Book, just issued by the Jewish Publication society of Philadelphia, the Jewish population of the United States is given as 1,777,185. Only two countries have a greater Jewish population, Russia, with 5,215,505, and Austria-Hungary, with 2,076,357. This immigration through the ports of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore for the year ended June 30, 1907, was 131,119. The Jewish population of the United States is larger by 531 than the combined Jewish population of the British empire, Germany, France, Italy, Morocco, Turkey, Spain, China, Netherlands, Denmark, Norway, Peru and Creta. The British empire has only 361,633 Jews, of whom 17,103 are in Australia, 18,228 in India, 48,820 in South Africa and 40,000 in Canada and British Columbia. There are 463,686 Jews in Turkey, 30,578 in Egypt and 45,580 in Persia. In these three countries there are about 100,000 fewer than there are in New York city. The Jewish population of the world is given as 11,565,202. American Jewish Year Book.

Although The Magdalene contains but 21 letters and The Vocabulary of The Creator but 210 words, yet they solve every mystery, indicate correct lines for the thorough investigation of all things and are so far-reaching in possibilities, that no individual need any longer remain in doubt of an important world he shall eternally exist and prosper.

This is certain, The Church, the mother of harlots, the consort of devils, and the murderer of Saints, is embarking rottenness into her ranks, wandering further and further from the Truth, and must be purified and apply greater wisdom and tact. In The Consistent Teaching of Bible and must conform thereto, and set an example worthy of imitation, or The Bible shall be taken from them as it practically is in its present uncomprehended state and given to a people who will appreciate it at its worth, solve its mysteries and live its precepts.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

The rubbing of the curtain at the Myers theatre tonight will reveal the dooryard of Mr. Mayerle, Brander's house in Texas. Mr. Brander is a wealthy cattle owner and his family consists of a wife and daughter. The ladies live of their rustic home and conceive a desire to shine in society. They have tried to induce the old gentleman to run for congress but he persistently refuses. At the time the play opens Mr. B. is away from home and the ladies arrange to have him elected before his return.

The popular meet him and announce the fact and insist on his accepting the office. The scene then shifts to the Arlington hotel, Washington, and the trials the Texan is put to in his endeavor to keep pace with the Washington set and out some of the best comedy work that the people of this city may expect to witness this season.

The wife and daughter appear in gorgeous raiments, get after the best Texan pattern, which are a source of mortification to the gallant captain who is in love with Miss Bossy, the daughter, and who has promised to introduce them into the Washington society. A quarrel takes place in consequence between the lovers which is not mended until the last, and, of course, the congressmen meantime get into innumerable scrapes through his ignorance of the ways of politicians and tricksters. He is followed to Washington by a colored statesman from his district who is desirous of representing the government in Baltimore and who meets with the general fate of other seekers who look for a fat berth right away. An investigating committee from Texas arrives on the scene and create quite an uproar before they depart, satisfied. This is the skeleton of "A Texas Steer," but there are twenty-five characters in it that contribute to one of the best farce-comedies ever written.

The cast includes such well known people as Jas. H. McCall, who has been with Ford's attractions for many seasons; Nina Wilber, the charming actress, as the Texas maiden. The full bill of the end is so lengthy that mention of all is impossible, but the play is strongly supported on all sides and looks nothing.

is one thing and to make all kinds of claims for a heating stove is another thing. In the genuine ROUND OAK you can satisfy every purchaser. It has never disappointed a user yet. Why, some people think as much or more of their genuine ROUND OAK stove as they do of their favorite horse. Year after year it has been tested. In buying it not a chance do you take. We guarantee it. Do not think for a moment that an imitation would do the work like a ROUND OAK. They are entirely different. The imitation has a single fire pot with large base; it does not heat the floor. It makes chinkers just like the old style stove. The ROUND OAK has a double fire pot with cone center grate. It makes no chinkers. It has a smaller base and heats the floor warm under and around the stove. It has other exclusive features, all of which we will explain if you will favor us with a call. To be certain it is the genuine, see the name ROUND OAK on the leg and door.

ELKS' BENEFIT
A BIG SUCCESS

LIKewise THE "OPEN HOUSE" AT NEW CLUB-ROOMS.

LODGE TO NET OVER $250

Howard and Garrison's New Production Pleased, Though Music Lacked Spontaneity and Charm of Former Compositions.

Janesville Lodge No. 251, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, under the new regime of handsome club-rooms and a largely increased and representative membership list, made its first formal bow to the public Saturday afternoon and proved itself an agreeable, resourceful, and accomplished host. The commodious quarters, tastefully decorated with great bouquets of chrysanthemums and carnations, ferns and palms, by a committee composed of Edward Amerpohl, H. H. Baldwin, H. W. McManis, George Sale and J. J. Cunningham, were opened to visitors at two o'clock in the afternoon and many of the ladies who went there to make a cursory survey of the apartments, popularly supposed to be in powerful competition with the home fireside, lingered for afternoon coffee and found themselves completely captivated with the surroundings and all latent opposition reduced to a vanishing point. After the evening performance in the theatre, another large crowd of visitors repaired to the rooms for coffee and sandwiches and such other light refreshments as the little buffet afforded. A fire burned out and left the card-room in darkness for a while but only during an interval long enough to permit H. S. Johnson and C. S. Putnam to visit their stores and secure candles and candlesticks. Later on Joe Howard, Mr. Lorenz, Mr. Payne, the musical director, and other members of the company as well as a number of local artists participated in an informal musicale. Mr. Howard favoring the company with the rendition of a new piece which he is now composing and which he promised to dedicate to the Janesville Lodge of Elks. The latter belongs to the St. Louis lodge and is a life member of the order.

Financially, the benefit theatrical performance was the most notable success in the history of the local organization. An audience which filled every seat in the playhouse greeted the performance and the gross receipts amounted to over one thousand dollars. Seven hundred dollars was turned over to the manager of the show company and after other expenses have been paid the lodge treasury will be increased by $250 or more, as a result of the venture.

Performance Pleased.

The presentation of "The Flower of the Ranch" revealed a colorful western drama, with the familiar border characters in full regalia of leather, warpaint, and alkali dust, and frequent song and dance interpolations. It was splendidly mounted and costumed, and if the "Timberline" of Earl Stanley, the "Pony Express" of A. A. Klein, the "Jack Ransom" of Joseph E. Howard, the "Savage" of Edward H. Gower, were interesting and realistic figures in the picture, "The Flower of the Ranch" was a masterpiece of the native, capturing little "flower" of the author's enthusiastic admiration of all in her habitable portrait. A comedy chorus of singing and dancing girls scintillated through the plot at intervals with happy horse maneuvers, Indian ceremonies, and other features, all of which were well received, and the two costars made a big hit in the "in Vaudeville" specialty which served to introduce an excellent take-off of Vesta Victoria and a laugh-provoking hand-organ and monkey stunt. The music was somewhat reminiscent of many other good things which have been heard in recent years. Those who were familiar with the "What's the Use of Dreaming" and "Samo Old Story" of "The District Leader" found nothing in "The Flower of the Ranch" approaching in originality and charm the more venerable compositions, try as Mr. Howard did with his agreeable presence and voice to make the new ones win equal favor with the old.

OBITUARY.

Pliny Rodman Ide

Pliny Rodman Ide, born in the town of Fulton, Rock county, March 29, 1850, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. A. Schoenberg, 161 Locust street, shortly after four o'clock Sunday morning. Besides the daughter, there are left to mourn his loss two brothers, Fremont Ide of Edgerton and Es-Judge Harvey Ide of Leavenworth, Mo., and a sister, Mrs. George Coxhead of Edgerton. Funeral services will be held at the daughter's home at 10:30, Tuesday morning, and the remains will there after be taken overland to Edgerton to be interred alongside the grave of a brother, the late Dr. Spencer Ide, in the family lot.

Frank Kane

Frank Kane, an inmate of the county asylum, died Sunday. He was 41 years of age, his home formerly being in Mineral Point. He is survived by a wife. Funeral services will be held at 8:45 tomorrow morning from the D. A. Ryan undertaking parlors and at 9 o'clock from the St. Patrick's church.

Mrs. Jane Sleeper

Old-time friends gathered at the local North-Western depot Sunday noon to escort the remains of the late Mrs. Jane Sleeper, which arrived here from Chicago yesterday, to Oak Hill cemetery, where they were laid to rest. The Rev. John McKinney officiated at the grave where brief services were held. Those who acted as pallbearers were C. S. Putnam, V. P. Richardson, E. P. Carpenter, Geo. McKoy, A. A. Jackson, and F. D. Kimball.

The Late Mrs. Sleeper

In the passing away of the late Mrs. Jane Sleeper the life of one of Janesville's early settlers is brought to a close. Both she and her husband were genial and beloved. Mr. Sleeper was one of the kindest and truest men not only to his immediate friends but had a love for the city as well. It was he who kept this city from becoming a ghost town for the sum of $250,000 (the amount asked for by the directors of the C. & N. W. railway company) as most cities of the North-Western line did when the road was put through. With a brass band in the lead the directors visited every city in this vicinity and succeeded in getting municipal bonds from many of them. Mr. Sleeper did not think it right to tax widows and minor heirs and called a meeting to decide the matter. The result was no bonds were issued and Janesville escaped a debt which ruined many cities. Later we did give a right of way to the road and raised $10,000 for the right-of-way for the "Janesville cut-off" line.

CHAPTER VIII.

"YOU mother wouldn't leave me go, Abe, you know that, even if I wanted to."

"Yes," said Abe bitterly, "even if you wanted? That's the way you put it, ain't? And you don't want. If you'd make your mind up, Eunice, that you wanted to go, don't you know that you wouldn't have the dare to stop you? Because you've got your age, and if you tried to boss you you have the right to up and tell her, 'I don't have to.' It's time you knowed that once!"

Eunice looked at her foster brother and would be lover with sudden attention. They were in the spring house, he standing in the doorway and barring her exit, and she, with her daily burden of butter, cheese and milk for the dinner table, waiting anxiously to be allowed to pass.

"Have I the right, Abe, to follow my own will?" she asked, with a repressed eagerness, which Abe instantly interpreted as referring to his invitation to her to go with him next day to the circus in town. "I didn't know that, Abe."

"You're your own boss when you're eighteen, aren't you?"

"But your mother and father support me," she remonstrated, repeating the lesson which had been ground into her ever since she could remember anything, "and so have a right to control me, haven't they?"

There was an anxious wistfulness in her eyes which thrilled her baffled and discouraged sister with hope.

"Don't you earn your keep and a good bit over where (which) you don't get? If they had a hired girl do half what you do, still they'd have to give her two a week."

"But, then, I am working for them now to pay for the years they supported me when I was too little to work."

"Och, Eunice, you was always wonderful dumb! There ain't no time since you was five years old, aren't you, that you ain't earned all it cost to keep you, and them couple years before that when you was too little—well," he said mysteriously, "I could tell you someplace if I wanted—someplace where would make you say to mom and pop pretty quick, 'I don't have to.' They had ought to be payin' you wages. It ain't right they don't."

"Tell me what you mean about those two years of my childhood."

Abe hesitated. "Pop would jaw me someplace terrible if I told you. You just wait. Some time I'll tell you more. But now," he urged, "if you're got any spunk you up and tell 'em you're goin' along with me to the circus in. Ain't you will, Eunice? Och, go on!"

He attempted a clumsy caress, but she drew back. Abe scowled angrily. "Look at here, Eunice. You might be glad I wanted to keep company with you!"

"Why?" she asked, with a childlike wonder, as though the proposition were a curious one.

"Ain't I got to be well fixed till pop's deceased, aren't you?" he demanded. "And look at the good times you could have off of me, buggy rides! Sundays and goin' to circuses and all. When does a girl ever get any fun without a gentleman friend to run with her? And it ain't everybody fixed like me would want to keep company with you, neither—with pop and mom so down on my ruinin' with a girl who won't have no answer. You won't bring me nothin'." he said ruefully. "Sollin' but my pop's and mom's spite! Yes, you might be glad, anyhow, I want you!"

Eunice regarded him thoughtfully, but made no answer.

"Can't you see it that there way?" he persisted.

"But I could not let any man sacrifice so much for me, even if I did want to marry him."

"There you go ag'in!" he exclaimed indignantly. "Even if you did want, you say! I can't see why you don't want. Say," he said, his discouraged tone changing to hopeful, "if I mebbe because you don't like to get pop and mom down on me? But," he reasoned, "you see, all I'd be givin' up for you don't weigh ag'in what I'd be gettin'. And, you see, I'd reason with pop and mom like this—I'd say, 'Eunice, she ain't been raised to go much or spend any at the circus like some, and she's used to hard work and in the end she'd mebbe save me more'n if I married another one where had money, but where wasn't contented not to be spendin' and goin'.' I've spoke them arguments to myself, still, aren't you, when I thought of your not bringin' me any answer—and them same reasonings would weigh with pop and mom, Eunice," he urged coaxingly.

"I do not doubt it, Abe."

"Then you'll go with—to the circus?" he pleaded. "Ain't?"

"No."

"I'll take your part ag'in pop and mom. Ain't you got any spunk? Or don't you like circuses—or what?"

"I'm not afraid of your mother and father, though your mother's loud complaints often weary me when I listen to them; but, Abe, I can't let you spend money taking me pleasure seeking when I don't intend to marry you."

According to the Pennsylvania Dutch social standards, such a course on the part of the girl would have been perilous, inasmuch as acceptance of an invitation to go with one's "gentleman friend" to a circus was tantamount to accepting a proposal of marriage.

"I'd like to know," said Abe sullenly, "how you expect to do any better."

"Would you, Abe? I'll tell you," she said gently. "I'd do better by lying down across the railroad tracks and letting the cars run over me."

She made another quick move to pass him, for Mrs. Morningstar's shrill tones were shrieking angry commands to the girl to stop dawdling there with her Abe and come in with them "wittles."

For any least attention paid to her by the son of her foster parents Eunice was always made to suffer, it being assumed gratuitously that the penniless girl and not the prospectively rich youth did the love making.

But Abe was so spellbound with amazement at such startling speech from the usually meek and subservient girl that he did not hear or at least did not heed his mother's voice. As Eunice forced her way past him the close contact of her body sent the fire through his veins, and he seized her about the waist and pressed his lips to her cheek—just as his mother, in a rage, strode to the spring house door and as Dr. Kinross, with his books concealed in an old basket, was surreptitiously returning by a back way from his morning's outing.

"You little hussy!" cried Mrs. Morningstar. "Go in and tend to the dinner and leave our Abe be!"

"You leave me be, mom," retorted Abe, looking shamefaced, but his mother, not stopping to discuss the matter with him, walked after Eunice into the house, her angry upbraidings following the girl into the kitchen.

"Now, what a spiteful creature the daniel is not to turn on that woman and resent her abuse!" Dr. Kinross thought, with mingled compassion and impatience, as he slowly followed them up the path to the house.

Meantime Abe, still tingling from the joy of his stolen embrace, was hastily examining something that he had found in the spring house which had excited his jealous suspicion. While he had been waiting for Eunice to come to the spring he had accidentally discovered, sticking under the door sill, an envelope addressed to Miss Eunice Morningstar. Now, judging from his own feelings toward the girl, he did not see how any man's eyes could rest upon her and not desire her, and he had therefore leaped to the instant conclusion that this was a love letter to Eunice from "that dude towner," as he privately characterized Kinross.

A rage of hot jealousy had swept over him and he had been about to tear the envelope into bits when the sudden appearance of Eunice in the doorway had caused him quickly to conceal it in his pocket, to be examined or destroyed later.

So, while his mother was driving the girl into the house with her reproaches, he lingered in the spring house, was tearing open, with hands that shook, the letter addressed to another.

His jaw dropped in amazement as he saw the name subscribed at the end of the sheet. Henry Muckelohony. His sister Ollie's name! What could he be writing to Eunice for? Did he want to be a bigamist? With a curiosity equal to his jealousy Abe read the brief epistle.

Dear Eunice—There's a misunderstanding. I don't mean Ollie, I mean you. But when I began to come Sundays, Ollie she took it for herself. But it ain't her, it's you. It don't come easy to explain her. I don't mean her. She'd take it hard. I can't let her know she's a good girl, but she's a good girl and could be a good provider. I wanted to keep company with you ever since I seen you in church children's day, six weeks back already. Well, that Sunday you was in church once, ain't? When you come in church, come one says to me, that's Eunice Morningstar. I says to myself, of course not loud, I know it is and she looks so pretty, I believe I love her. Anyhow you can write to me and tell me about it. I paid one night to find out if you was the right one. I gave a church in the collection when you was in church. God loves a cheerful giver. Well, I had to stop now. You will write to me now, ain't? If I spell different, I'm spelling simplified. Cordially your foster brother, HENRY MUCKELOHONY.

A look of cunning settled about Abe's mouth as he finished his surreptitious reading. It was no slight shock to discover that he had so strong a rival as Hen Muckelohony. Nevertheless he felt quite equal to coping with him.

Without an instant's hesitation he tore the sheet and the envelope into bits. "She won't never see that!"

And then he ain't got baked all, and them pie ain't got baked all, and that ain't enough for the size of pie we eat."

"I'm sorry you find it so troublesome to enter for us, Mrs. Morningstar," said Georgiana. "But take comfort—there are some essentials of diet that one can never find so good in town as on a farm—butter, for instance."

"Yes, well, but," Mrs. Morningstar shook her head doubtfully, "the butter ain't good on the farms all. Not like ours, Eunice," she called shrilly to the outer kitchen, "make over the coffee now and put an extra spoonful yet in and use the big pot—the little one is yet so soon full. You towners," she explained to the young ladies, "like your coffee so strong that way. Well, I like it when it tastes good, too—coffee—especially by the such cold winter weather. But," shaking her head, "not so strong like you take it. Yes, it makes me a difference, too, if my wittles don't suit me. Now here one day," she related as she placed a white crusted pie on either end of the table, "we had a boarder here for a week from out West, and she said how they tried their sauerkraut. Well, I says, that would be a big surprise to me to eat fried sauerkraut yet! Eunice," she again called, "take watch once when the meat comes; Doc—Eunice—she says he'd now like steak once!"

"You are very indulgent to your farmhand," remarked Georgiana as Peter at that moment walked into the room and sat down in a huge painted rocking chair directly in front of the settee.

"Och, Doc," warned Mrs. Morningstar, "that chair'll fall together if you set on it before Mister makes it now rockers at."

Peter removed himself to the edge of the settee beside Miss Hilary, who, with apparent willingness, made room for him by drawing away the skirt of her remarkably pretty pink summer gown. Kinross liked her taste in dress; her costumes were simple to the point of distinction and, he thought, exactly suited her style of beauty.

"I guess you think such a old chair would be soon be thrown on the wood-

And when he comes Sunday and she ain't round he'll think she's discouraged him and he'll lose heart. And then mebbe he'll take to Ollie for all if he keeps on comin' and settin' up with her, because he ain't got cheek enough to tell her it ain't her he means."

A few moments later Kinross, at the ringing of the dinner bell, ostentatiously joined the other men at the pump to wash his face and hands and comb his hair before coming to the table. This performance was part of his disguise as a farmhand, but today it deflected his own ends, for the two young ladies, coming into the kitchen from the front porch, where they had spent the morning in hammocks and rockers, made note of the fact that when Peter took his turn at the kitchen pump he did not use the family towel on the roller, but carried his own towel on his arm and combed his hair with his own pocket comb instead of using the family comb which always lay on the window ledge, convenient for the use of every one.

"Now, hurry on here, Eunice," prompted Mrs. Morningstar, bustling to and from the stove in the outer kitchen to the dinner table, "and make things on the table quick. Och," she threw a remark to the young ladies who waited on the settee, "the we're done the breakfast cooking, it's time for dinner a'ready. And it's so hard to know what to cook all, too, for you towners. And today it was every-thing now scarce. The bird was all and the plox was run out and the bread stale. And here this morning I got Doc for his breakfast fat cakes with coffee over and he says, now that he certainly don't want. So he cut balcony, where I bought off of Jake Reckert's meat car. That there balcony I don't like—they say Jake he puts most anything in it! But Doc he eat it."

"Doc?" repeated Daisy inquiringly. "But he's not a townor."

"Och," said Mrs. Morningstar in confusion, "I don't mean to say he's just a townor. But he's near as sneaky about his wittles as if he was one."

Daisy at once seized her notebook, "Sneaky?" Does that mean choicy? How perfectly killing!"

"Eunice," Mrs. Morningstar again shrieked, "fetch them pie out of the oven! Och," she volubly continued to her boarders, "I couldn't get that dunkey of a new stove to work today

She was checked by the entrance of Abe and his father, who now came into the kitchen and took their places at the table, where the boarders joined them. Abe looked half sullen, half shamefaced, with a scowl for his mother's overtures to him and furtive glances at Eunice as she moved about the table setting cups of coffee and saucers of cornstarch at each place.

Kinross looked on at this little by-play with sympathetic interest.

"The fellow will marry that dowerless girl," he confidently thought. "Trust a quiet girl like that to play her cards cleverly! She has Abe where she wants him! No doubt she's a cat, like all other women, and is working that youth as much to spite his mother as to make a good market for herself. Women are all alike fundamentally."

FAST TRAIN IS WRECKED.

Queen & Crescent Passenger Collides with Freight—Three Killed.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 4.—Fast passenger train No. 3, on the Queen & Crescent, going at a high rate of speed, collided head-on with a freight train one mile south of Morganville, Ga., Sunday morning. Two men were killed, six seriously injured and about 20 passengers sustained more or less painful injuries.

The dead are: C. B. Spencer, engineer, of Birmingham; Bud Apperson, of Trenton, Ga., and Joe Young, colored fireman.

Saratoga, Pa., Nov. 4.—Engineer Henry Carey was killed and two others were seriously injured by the wrecking of the Quaker City flyer on the Jersey Central railroad about half a mile north of Pittston Sunday night.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 4.—Two brakemen were killed, a third man was injured and one man was injured as the result of a wreck Sunday when an extra west-bound freight train on the settee beside Miss Hilary, who, with apparent willingness, made room for him by drawing away the skirt of her remarkably pretty pink summer gown. Kinross liked her taste in dress; her costumes were simple to the point of distinction and, he thought, exactly suited her style of beauty.

"I guess you think such a old chair would be soon be thrown on the wood-

And when he comes Sunday and she ain't round he'll think she's discouraged him and he'll lose heart. And then mebbe he'll take to Ollie for all if he keeps on comin' and settin' up with her, because he ain't got cheek enough to tell her it ain't her he means."

A few moments later Kinross, at the ringing of the dinner bell, ostentatiously joined the other men at the pump to wash his face and hands and comb his hair before coming to the table. This performance was part of his disguise as a farmhand, but today it deflected his own ends, for the two young ladies, coming into the kitchen from the front porch, where they had spent the morning in hammocks and rockers, made note of the fact that when Peter took his turn at the kitchen pump he did not use the family towel on the roller, but carried his own towel on his arm and combed his hair with his own pocket comb instead of using the family comb which always lay on the window ledge, convenient for the use of every one.

"Now, hurry on here, Eunice," prompted Mrs. Morningstar, bustling to and from the stove in the outer kitchen to the dinner table, "and make things on the table quick. Och," she threw a remark to the young ladies who waited on the settee, "the we're done the breakfast cooking, it's time for dinner a'ready. And it's so hard to know what to cook all, too, for you towners. And today it was every-thing now scarce. The bird was all and the plox was run out and the bread stale. And here this morning I got Doc for his breakfast fat cakes with coffee over and he says, now that he certainly don't want. So he cut balcony, where I bought off of Jake Reckert's meat car. That there balcony I don't like—they say Jake he puts most anything in it! But Doc he eat it."

"Doc?" repeated Daisy inquiringly. "But he's not a townor."

"Och," said Mrs. Morningstar in confusion, "I don't mean to say he's just a townor. But he's near as sneaky about his wittles as if he was one."

Daisy at once seized her notebook, "Sneaky?" Does that mean choicy? How perfectly killing!"

"Eunice," Mrs. Morningstar again shrieked, "fetch them pie out of the oven! Och," she volubly continued to her boarders, "I couldn't get that dunkey of a new stove to work today

"He," said Mrs. Morningstar, "but I'm used to it some thirty years, and I'd have homestead for it if it went."

"By the way, Mrs. Morningstar," said Daisy plaintively, "would you mind having the porch chairs moved to the side of the house which doesn't overlook the cemetery? We're here for our health."

Mrs. Morningstar looked at her in surprise. "But I don't think," she said reassuringly, "any of 'em would come over."

The entrance of Ollie at the kitchen door carrying a basket of apples checked Daisy's answer.

"Ollie," her mother turned to her complainingly, "where was you at! Come, hurry and help make the dinner on the table. What you waste time pickin' them apples fur? I got apples plenty."

Ollie pointed as she removed her sun-bonnet and hung it on a nail. "I like to be out, too, by this nice weather," she said, with a resentful glance at the two young ladies of leisure on the settee.

"Well, don't leave pop know you throwed away your time," warned her mother. "You know how it unpleases him—that there. Here, Eunice, dish up the cornstarch in those here saucers," she ordered as the girl came in with two steaming dishes. "Use the common saucers for all, only Doc and the two ladies not. Do you hear?" she said threateningly, looking at the girl's absent countenance. "I want to have it right done!"

Daisy took up her notebook. "A Pennsylvania Dutch farmhand," she repeated as she wrote, "is treated as an honored guest. Curious custom. Peter, you have a chick of it here, haven't you? Now, if you married Ollie and became one of the family—"

"Daisy!" Georgiana protested. "I was only going to say, Georgiana, he'd be up against it then. He couldn't lay off when he had headaches, and he wouldn't have his evidently dainty and fastidious appetite catered to. So I wouldn't advise you, Peter, to marry Ollie. And," she added, lowering her voice for Peter's ear alone, "she has an awful figure, hasn't she? She looks like a yard of pump water! But why Ollie ain't gone on you, Peter, I can't understand, for you're certainly the least woody looking!"

She was checked by the entrance of Abe and his father, who now came into the kitchen and took their places at the table, where the boarders joined them. Abe looked half sullen, half shamefaced, with a scowl for his mother's overtures to him and furtive glances at Eunice as she moved about the table setting cups of coffee and saucers of cornstarch at each place.

Kinross looked on at this little by-play with sympathetic interest.

"The fellow will marry that dowerless girl," he confidently thought. "Trust a quiet girl like that to play her cards cleverly! She has Abe where she wants him! No doubt she's a cat, like all other women, and is working that youth as much to spite his mother as to make a good market for herself. Women are all alike fundamentally."

ARRESTS CHECK LAW BREAKING.

Kansas City Has "Closed" Sunday—Only Theaters Open.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 4.—Never before in the history of this city was the Sabbath so strictly observed by the business interests as it was Sunday. All the merchants who have heretofore defied the attempts of Criminal Judge William H. Wallace to enforce the state law forbidding unnecessary labor on Sunday obeyed the Sunday closing order. The theaters, however, were open as usual, as they are protected by injunction proceedings pending in the federal court.

The decision of the merchants to obey the law was brought about by the wholesale arrests of those persons who were indicted by the grand jury Saturday for refusing to comply with the law on the two previous Sundays. The persons arrested were placed under bonds ranging from $500 to $1,000 each.

BRUTE IS ALMOST LYNCHED.

Assault on Girl at Marietta, O., Rescued from Furious Mob.

Marietta, O., Nov. 4.—John Sweeney, a married man, 35 years old, narrowly escaped being lynched by a mob for a dastardly assault on Anna Koon, a 14-year-old girl, Sunday afternoon.

Sweeney, who is the father of five children, was caught with the child in one of the buildings of the fair grounds, which is situated in the real-estate district, where a crowd quickly collected, and binding him with rope, started for the Muskingum river, bent on throwing him in. The police arrived in time to rescue him and fought the crowd back to the police station, where law-abiding citizens prevented further trouble. The girl is in a precarious condition.

Theatrical Man Tries Suicide.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Gustavus A. Wegelarth, lessee and manager of the Grand opera house and president of a company which is erecting the new William Penn theater in this city, attempted suicide at his home Sunday by shooting. He has a chance of recovery.

Celebrate Mikado's Birthday.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The fifty-fifth birthday anniversary of the emperor of Japan was celebrated Sunday night by a dinner at the Japanese embassy, where the members of the embassy were guests of Ambassador and Countess Aoki.

WHAT GAMES TEACH.

Football Contests Thus Far Have Shown Up Weaknesses.

NEW GAME VERSUS OLD STYLE

Importance of Drop Kicking Well Illustrated in Record of Matches in Which Field Goals Were Scored. Yale-West Point Game.

New or old football—that is the question at present confronting the coaches of big teams. Without trouble and with their charges well schooled in the rudiments of the game, the instructors have been able to develop an attack that will show under weaker defenses, but this mode of procedure has signally failed when an adroit opponent has been encountered, such as Yale found in West Point recently. Coach Forbes of West Point, with his experience on the Yale eleven behind him, had instructed his charges how to stop the 121 offense, but had given to the soldiers little in the way of scoring tactics, barring the forward pass. The Blue undoubtedly has much up its sleeve that was not revealed in the game at West Point, but certainly looks for a line breaker like Perry Hale or an end runner like Chadwick.

Coaches have thus far schooled their eleven to watch out for trick plays and to lay for the forward pass, which is the reason that the revolutionary measure to date has failed to establish itself as a certain mode of scoring. The points gathered have been rather the result of adroit following of the play in which the teams have been nearly matched, with a premium put on the kicking ability of the men to whom this department is delegated.

Between this time and the date of the biggest games much will be done to develop the forward pass and the many trick plays possible under the present formations, but certainly recent results showed that against formidable opponents reliance must be placed in the style of attack that was current before the rules were so sweeping revised.

A punter who does not outkick his ends will be able to keep the play in the enemy's territory, and within the scoring zone line breakers, and runners and drop kickers are immensely valuable. The importance of drop kickers was well realized in many recent battles, the results of thirteen games selected at random showing 60 of the 264 points to have been acquired by field goals. The medium of this point of gridiron warfare returned Pennsylvania State a winner over Cornell and enabled Minnesota to down Nebraska. Yale, relying on the forward pass, could not score on West Point, and the soldiers, with this play paramount in their minds, were unable to get anywhere near the Blue's goal line.

Boy Killed by Live Wire.

Bellefontaine, O., Nov. 4.—James Harshfield, aged 19, was instantly killed Sunday night and his father, Charles Harshfield, badly burned by contact with an electric light wire which had blown down near their suburban home.

Mrs. Surratt's Son Dies.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—Isaac Surratt, whose mother was executed for complicity in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, died Sunday, aged 36 years.

FOREIGN WOMEN HEARD.

Mrs. Crompton and Miss Callispart Address Purify Congress.

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 4.—Two prominent women from abroad made addresses at Sunday afternoon's session of the National Purify congress.

Mrs. Evelyn Crompton, one of England's greatest reformers, spoke in favor of unfolding physiological mysteries to children. Miss Susan Callispart, of Athens, Greece, who overcame the University of Athens' prejudice against a woman and secured the first B. A. degree given to a Greek woman, spoke on education.

Rev. S. B. Shaw, of Chicago, urged the necessity of coming in close contact with sin in order to get evidence with which to fight it. Rev. S. Q. Hattenstein, of Dayton, O., in his address declared purity of air, water and light is the basis of abundant life. Rev. Joseph McCarthy, of Kalamazoo, Mich., counseled girls to defend their purity, even with the pistol if necessary, and told of the danger of letting girls travel alone.

Home H. Green Dies at Bloomington.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 4.—Home H. Green, past grand commander of Knights Templars of Illinois, past master of Grand Lodge of Masons of Illinois and penitentiary commissioner under Gov. Tanner, died suddenly Sunday night of angina pectoris, aged 55 years.

Skull Broken in Football Game.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 4.—Jack Rhett, playing the position of left tackle on the Dietz Athletic football team, during a game Sunday with a team from Missouri Valley, Ia., sustained a fracture of the skull and is in a critical condition.

A Family Puzzle.

Atkinson—The family seems to be somewhat mixed. Hughes—Yes, it is; the woman is the man's third wife, and the man is the woman's second husband; the baby is the child of the woman's second husband by his third wife, the twins are children of the man by his first wife, the girl with red hair is the woman's child by her first husband, the boy with the short trousers is the son of the man by his second wife, and that little girl standing over there by the woman's second husband is another of the woman's children by her first husband.—Life.

Lost in the Telephone.

Henry Abraham has calculated the maximum effectiveness of the telephone for a sound of given pitch and a current of measured intensity. The result shows that there is great room for improvement in this respect. Notwithstanding the apparent extreme sensitiveness of the best telephones, they are, after all, surprisingly ineffective, since they transmit to the ear in the form of sound-waves less than a thousandth part of the energy received from the line.

Plenty of Work.

The patron who was reaching the brotherly stage leaned over the bar. "Mike," he asked, "what will all you fellows do when local option strikes you?" "Oh, there'll be plenty of work," responded Mike, cheerfully, "digging ditches to extend the water mains."—Kansas City Times.

She Knew It.

"My dear," said the head of the house, looking over his morning paper at his better half, "there is a crisis coming in China." "I know it!" she moaned. "Susan has left only half a dozen pieces whole out of our new dinner set."

When Father is It.

About the only procession "Father" ever heads is when the members of his family think they hear a burglar. In the dead of night, and push the poor little old man at the head of the procession that looks for the burglar. —Acheson Globe.

If the Truth Were Told.

One troubles to imagine what the world would be like if everyone said all that he or she thought without reservation, and if one's conscience would allow one to compliment one's hostess after her hopelessly dull entertainment, or to praise a friend's frock against one's judgment.

Delight for the Youngster.

A small boy will find infinite delight in hammering tacks into a block of soft wood. When one end is full he can turn it over and drive in more at the other, and so on, further employment being found in taking them out again, says Woman's Life. Small tacks, soft wood and a very light hammer, of course, are necessary.

His Funeral Remark.

"By do bleasin' or Providence," said Brother Williams, "he left money 'nuff ter bury him, an' he'll be some lef' over ter help his widder get a black dress, ter mourn for him 'twel she gets married ag'in."—Atlanta Constitution.

BATTLES FOR LOCAL OPTION.

"Dry" Hope to Win Half of Coming Elections in Missouri.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 4.—Seven counties and towns in Missouri are about to vote on local option, as follows: November 7, Nevada, in Vernon county; November 9, Monticello county; November 9, Pulaski county; November 11, Aurora, Lawrence county; November 12, Davies county; November 16, Caldwell county; November 23, Jackson county outside of Kansas City and Independence.

Fifty of the 114 counties in the state have already voted and are "dry." About 25 counties, cities and towns are to hold elections before December 31, and the Anti-Saloon League of Missouri expects one-half of these elections at least will be won by the "drys."

ONE MAN ROBS FIVE HOTELS.

Highwayman in Prescott, Ariz., Also Fatally Wounds a Man.

Prescott, Ariz., Nov. 4.—A lone highwayman armed with a knife Saturday night entered five hotels in this city, fatally wounded one of the guests who offered resistance, and made his escape after robbing a score of people encountered during his single-handed raids.

Melvin J. Forbes, Duluth, Is Dead.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 4.—Melvin J. Forbes, one of the oldest members of the Duluth board of trade, died Sunday at his home here. He had been ill for several months with heart trouble followed by a general complication of diseases. He had been identified with the grain commission business for 33 years and when he retired from active business owing to his illness he was president of the Consolidated Elevator company.

Strange Murder in West Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 4.—West Nashville, a suburb, was thrown into great excitement Sunday afternoon when Dr. P. McP. Allen, a prominent physician, was shot and killed just as he was preparing to step into an automobile, by Thomas S. Bush. Allen and Bush had been close friends for a long time. Bush declines to talk.

John Bunyan's Will Found.

Bellefontaine, O., Nov. 4.—While searching among old papers Mrs. M. K. Covington, of Huntville, discovered what purports to be the last will and testament of John Bunyan, author of "Pilgrim's Progress." The document is on parchment, yellow with age, and is dated, December 23, 1685.

Cork Legs.

From the name universally given artificial limbs one might suppose that they were made of cork, but that is not the case. They are so called from the fact that when artificial limbs were first produced the majority of factories were located in Cork street, London, and it became the custom to speak of them as cork legs. Since then manufacturers have been established in many countries, but the name of cork still clings to their wares.

WANTED NO MORE SISTERS.

One Girl Had Had Enough of Censorious Remarks.

"I didn't think you'd get so angry because I said I thought you ought to wear gray suede shoes with your gray dress instead of white ones. I didn't mean to offend you," her friend very sweetly apologized. "Never mind," she returned softly. "It was all right, but it made me angry for two reasons. First, because I had to wear the white shoes because I didn't have any others that were presentable, and, secondly, because when I left my family of sisters, who made every possible sort of comment on my clothes, I declared I would never stand it from anybody else. I said to myself that whenever a friend got so friendly that she thought she could treat me like a sister I'd shake her."

Worship the Cow.

In the Nigrl hills of southern India there dwells a race of men, the Todas, who devote the whole of their career to the worship of the cow or, to be precise, of the buffalo. Their most sacred temple is a cow house, and the whole life of the people is governed by the most rigid observance of the routine of dairy work, every detail of which is performed with the most elaborate ritual. They alone can perform the duties of milking and butter making who have been duly consecrated for this work by fasting and the performance of mysterious rites. Representing the only priesthood, they are compelled after their initiation for the rest of their days to play the role of the dairyman. The lowest priests may marry, but the high priest must be celibate, at least for a given period of years. Polyandry is the family rule, but divorce is unknown.

Never Go Empty Handed.

"That is what mother used to say to me many times when I was a child. If I was going upstairs, I must look about me and see if there wasn't something downstairs that belonged upstairs that I could carry up and put into its place; and so on from one part of the house to another. She always said it would be a great help in one's housekeeping and save lots of unnecessary steps, if people would just remember that little rule, and although I fall in many ways to pieces all the good things she taught me, I very often find myself saying to the children as they help about the house: 'Never go empty handed.'"
